

Ilia Luchnikov

Title: Machine learning approach to non-Markovian process tomography

Abstract:

We propose a new machine learning based approach to quantum process tomography. The main advantage of our approach is the possibility to reconstruct an effective low dimensional reservoir that is responsible for memory effects. This method can be used in real experiments and especially in quantum control experiments.